The purpose of this paper is to demonstrate how to enter the REFERENCES for each generation in support of page 1 lineage. The method of entering this information has evolved somewhat in the last couple years. No longer do the genealogists want explanatory statements associated with each document such as in the past, like "names parents" as an extension to a b/c listing.

The SAR Application Manual provides some examples of individual entries, but not for all potential document types. If a document type example is not provided, use something similar and logical.

The example below illustrates the way to properly enter REFERENCE documents. Note, this example uses somewhat fictitious information for illustration.

In this example, the names shown are and should be exactly as they would appear on the document. This would include any misspellings or omissions. Use a semi-colon between documents and period after last entry for a generation.
